"This is a breathtakingly fun fantasy adventure for PC's." - Polygon "The game has an intense and enjoyable action RPG style that took me by surprise. The game also feels incredibly complete as far as its world and lore are concerned, and the countless things to do will keep you busy long after you're done." - Destructoid "The action RPG is a true feast for the senses. The world is both enormous and filled with details, with a warm and inviting atmosphere that makes you want to visit every corner of it. The seamless change in pace from dungeon to dungeon is especially impressive." - Rock, Paper, Shotgun "Even though the game is really simple, the battle system is fun and the combat is easy to maneuver." - Kotaku "Elden Ring is a great example of how a fantasy game can be made to work. It's an online RPG, but it's not about the online. It's about being a lonely wanderer and putting the Xbox on as an interface. Not a bad idea." - GameZone "I just wish I had more time to spend in the world of Elyria. I'd love to explore." - GameSpot "There are times when all you want to do is just go on a joyride through the world, exploring it, killing monsters, and feeling the magic. That might not be the story of Elden Ring, but it could be its own spinoff...The potential is there. I just hope we see it." - GamesRadar "In short, this game is fantastic. It's beautiful and funny and just plain fun." - Game Informer "Stepping into the world of Elyria doesn't feel like a cold and distant place. It's warm and inviting." - Polygon "Elden Ring is a smart, realistic, and beautiful fantasy RPG that is set to build something truly amazing. It's the beginning of something new in gaming." - Ars Technica "Elden Ring is a true MMO-style game, but you won't need to play online to enjoy this game. The world map is huge, with plenty of things to do, and the game itself is spread across a myriad of wildly different regions of this ethereal world." - Ars Technica "Elden Ring is a fresh take on the turn-based RPG, and is likely to keep you glued for {% endblock %}1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an airbag cover containing a decorative element and to a method of producing the airbag cover having the decorative element thereon. In particular, the present invention relates to a system and method for providing a decorative element on an airbag cover. 2. Description of the Prior Art It is well known that motor vehicles are often provided with one or more airbags for deployment during accidents. These airbags have various different purposes and may include frontal airbags, side airbags, curtain airbags, occupant detection airbags, and the like. Each airbag includes a cover that is placed over a chamber or volume of gas and which further includes an inflator for producing gas for driving a balloon, cushion, or opening within the chamber. Airbag covers are typically of a durable, rigid material. The covers, when formed with gas chambers, are typically formed as a single piece, molded cover having a rigid shell disposed about the chamber. The covers, and shells surrounding the chambers, typically have hard edges defining the opening through which the gas is delivered into the chambers. This hard edge creates undesirable exposure of the gas to the edge which can be uncomfortable, irritating, and can result in bladder pain for the user of the airbag system. A need exists to reduce the hard edge around the opening or chamber which receives gas into the airbag system. Additionally, a need exists to provide an easy, low-cost way for a consumer to personalize the face plate of an airbag cover to enhance the decorative appearance of their vehicles. In view of the above, an airbag cover may be developed having a web that attaches to a chamber. A decorative element may be attached to the web. Furthermore, in order for an airbag cover to be utilized with an airbag system that includes an inflator which produces gas within the chamber, a need exists for an airbag cover which functions as a conduit to guide gas from the inflator to the chamber. U.S. Pat. No. 6,205,673 to LaLonde discloses a system for attaching a decorative element onto the inflation opening of an inflatable restraint system. The interior of an airbag cover housing is divided into an upper first region and a lower second region. The inflation opening extends from the lower region into the upper region. The system comprises a first type of connector which is positioned within the inflation opening and is adapted to accept a connecting member made of
