Laravel5: Validation rule "required_without"
in form I'm following the docs for validating a form in Laravel 5. The docs have a very simple example to show you how to do this. The question is, why does the validation rules laravel5 require "required_without" in the string? The docs are this: The Laravel validation code is this:
protected function rules() { $validator = Validator::make($this->data, [ 'name'
=>'required|max:255', 'email'
=>'required|email|max:255|unique:users',
]); return $validator; } What laravel5 required_without should do is, the user should have the field required, but he should not have that field if the user already have that field, is a condition when applying the validation rule. In this case, the user have already an email. The docs say that the rule "required_without" do what the docs say. Am I missing something? Or the docs are wrong? A: This is a new addition in Laravel 5.1 In Laravel 5.1, you can use the require_without method (rather than "required_without" as the name suggests) to validate a field only if it does not exist Model class Model { ...
