The game begins with the player controlling one of the ten available heroes, each of which has their own home village and skills, and can be levelled up to improve their combat prowess and a variety of other statistics. Each hero has a set number of hit points which can be increased by visiting certain buildings in their home village. Players also have access to a variety of items, magic spells, and items which are found in chests, set traps, and other locations. A full list of items and their appearance in the game can be seen below: The game does not include full-motion video, but the cutscenes are very detailed. Character portraits and dialogue are not shown as text, but as animations. The in-game music is composed by long time Might and Magic composer, Emil Pagliarulo, who is known for composing the soundtrack for the Might and Magic

series of games. Ubisoft announced in June 2008 Might & Magic Online : Shadows of Undrentide, a new fantasy MMORPG released on 25th June, 2009.

It is designed by Volition Software, the same developer of the Saints Row series of games, and is published by the French company Ubisoft. It is based on the same technology as the game Age of Wonders III. Like Age of Wonders III, it allows the player to create their own heroes, recruit an army, develop skills and levels, face monsters and players. The game has been given the subtitle Shadows of Undrentide. Furthermore, it is a part of the Warlords (MMORPG) series. This means that players will be able to play along side (rather than against) other people, meaning the game has a player versus player side.
