the iphone 4s and the "s" generation of the ipad are both 16:9 form factors. in my studies, i noticed a lot of confusion among people about how to watch their videos on these devices. people were afraid to use the ipad because it was the only device to play 16:9 content. people have also been confused about videos and how to watch them correctly on both the iphone 4s and the "s" generation of the ipad. the truth is that both the 16:9 iphones and the 16:9 ipads play videos just like televisions do, using a single aspect ratio (aspect ratio is the same as a ratio of two). the aspect ratio is slightly different from a tv as the iphone 4s only uses a ratio of 3:2, while the "s" generation of the ipad only uses a ratio of 4:3, because they were made to be a phone and a tablet, not a television, so they only have two different aspect ratios. do not worry, you can enjoy your videos on the iphone 4s and the "s" generation of the ipad on any display just like you would watch them on a television. select how to import the csv file: you have the option to edit the import file, or overwrite it in its current state. edit import file? this option allows you to open a csv file in the navicat application, which you can select the table or view that you want to import. the imported data will be displayed in the table as a separate table and if you do not make any changes to the original data set you will not lose any data during the import. if you need to make any changes to the data, you can open the original file and make your changes there, or you can edit the data that you imported in the table and save the changes to the original file.

overwrite import file? select this option if you want to import the contents of the csv file, but do not want to make any changes to the original data set.

the navicat application will be opened with the original csv file in your navicat application. you will not be able to select a table or view for the imported data. if you want to change the data, you can open the original file, make your changes, and save the data into the original csv file.

add a column? - add a column that represents a new identifier for the data.
