Q: Difference between return is empty OR mysqli_fetch_assoc(...) What is the difference between return is empty and mysqli_fetch_assoc(...) for MySQLi? For example: $query = "SELECT id, name FROM user"; $result = mysqli_query($db, $query); if (mysqli_num_rows($result) > 0) { while($row = mysqli_fetch_assoc($result)) { // execute code here } mysqli_free_result($result); } A: mysqli_fetch_assoc() returns either false if no rows were returned from the query, or an array of the fetched row if one or more rows were returned. It does not, as does return or var_dump(), return an error. In terms of logic, return is empty mysqli_fetch_assoc($result) if (mysqli_num_rows($result) > 0) { while($row = mysqli_fetch_assoc($result)) { // execute code here } mysqli_free_result($result); } returns false for a query that does not return rows. This kind of usage is discouraged though, since it's not always easy to tell what kind of query you are using. $result = mysqli_query($db, $query); if ($result === false) { // throw an exception, don't just return false! } else { while($row = mysqli_fetch_assoc($result)) { // execute code here } mysqli_free_result($result); } or, mysqli_fetch_assoc() if (mysqli_num_rows($result) > 0) { $row = mysqli_fetch_assoc($result); // execute code here mysqli_free_result($result)
